WOMEN AND WOMEN'S INTERESTS

Women are becoming less hysterical and better able to care for themselves every day. In former times when anything went wrong the average wife and mother would weep and wring her hands. Now she gets up and does something to remedy it.

In matters of hygiene women have made better progress than men. The latter are apt to be afraid of fresh air, but it is hard to find a woman who does not sleep with her windows wide open.

Soft beds with many pillows have given way to a hard mattress with only one pillow or in many instances none at all. This does away with the tendency to become round shouldered.

The morning tub followed by a cold shower is a complexion beautifier as well as a nerve tonic.

A bright writer says that the reason women have not amounted to much in the past was that men ate too much. The average woman was kept tired to death by her gigantic task of "feeding the brute," so she hadn't the energy to develop many fine ideas of her own.

A small quantity of niter, applied with a camel's hair brush will remove very obstinate and hardened inkstains from wood. Six drops of niter to a teaspoonful of water is sufficient, applied until the ink has disappeared. Then rub the place with a damp cloth and polish with a piece of soft muslin or cheesecloth.

Worms in wood may be kept down by the use of paraffin applied to the holes with a small brush.

A little vinegar added to the water when washing windows will give a better polish.

Save the corks from vinegar and olive oil bottles and put them in the box containing the bath brick. They will be found better than a cloth or sponge for scouring kitchen knives.

If cooking utensils are filled with water to which a handful of sal soda has been added, immediately after the food has been washed out, and set on the stove to boil the most repulsive part of dish washing will be made easy.

When you need sour milk and haven't any, stir a few drops of lemon juice into a cupful of sweet milk a few minutes before you are ready to use it.

To remove iodine stains from wash fabrics dip the stained portion into some cold water to which a liberal quantity of starch has been added and let stand a few minutes. The stains will change to a deep violet color and will disappear when laundered.

To remove mildew from white materials wet the article and make a paste of starch and yellow soap to cover the spots. Leave rolled up for several hours and then wash in kerosene. If necessary repeat several times.

Save the fragments of wax candles and shave a small portion into the starch when making it. It will prevent sticking when ironing and will give a splendid glossy finish.

HARRIS-THORPE

Cupid is endeavoring to establish a record in our little city. "A marriage for every day in June" seems to be his motto. So far he has been successful, during the past few weeks, at least.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford at the corner of Oak and Hill streets was the scene of a very quiet little wedding on Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock, when Miss Rena Harris and Mr. James Thorpe were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Judge H. H. Pratt in the presence of the bride's younger sister, Miss Ribbon Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford and Mr. Parker.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white Persian lawn and Miss Ribbon Harris was also dressed in white. The bride arrived here a few days ago from Okmulgee, Oklahoma. The groom is quite well known in this vicinity as he owns a ranch near here which they will make their future home, having driven there immediately after the ceremony. We join with their friends in extending good wishes and congratulations.

Just now when Cupid is working so hard that he seems to be working overtime, it would be well to consider the kind of husband the average girl desires. There are so very many kinds of girls that it would seem a very broad question, but suppose we consider the business or self-supporting girl.

Above all she likes the man who is courteous and attentive to the little needs. In her daily life she is accustomed to meeting men in a business way when she cannot have all the little courtesies and for that reason they mean more to her than to the society girl.

A girl may like to quarrel with a sweetheart for the pleasure of "making up" but when she chooses a husband she wants one who will be patient and good natured so there will be no quarrels.

A business girl does not admire a "quitter" or one who can't "make good." It depends upon her occupation as to what particular business she will most admire, but whatever may be his line she wants him to be confident and show his capability in mastering that business. She has no confidence in the vacillating man's ability to support her since he seems hardly capable of earing for himself. She will express sympathy for the man who complains that his employer does not appreciate his merits and that is the reason he cannot advance, but when he proposes she will still have only sympathy for him.

Generally she has been living in rooms and making frequent changes for various reasons so she wishes to marry a man with a fixed salary in order that she may be able to maintain a home of her own where she may reign as queen instead of the landlady.

She will steer clear of the "lady killer," for although he may be a pleasant enough companion at a theater party or picnic, he will more than likely prove to be a selfish and irritable husband.

To sum up, a girl likes a man whom other men respect. She doesn't want him to be a snoot but she wants him to have honest business ideals or as she herself would say it—to be a man and not to be above expressing his love and tenderness for her, for that is what she craves most of all in her husband.

Mrs. Alexander and Miss Westmire, who have been guests at the Dominion during the past week, returned yesterday morning to their home at Indian Hot Springs. Miss Westmire hopes to return to Globe later in the summer when she will be the guest of Miss Hazel Keegan.

Mr. Chas. E. Hewes, who was recently married at Alameda, Cal., writes that he and Mrs. Hewes have returned to that place after visiting the fair at Seattle.

Word has been received from Miss Ida Thompson, who left here last week after an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Brown. Miss Thompson had stopped over at Juarez where she was enjoying the sights before going on to Waco, Texas.

Mr. George Sultan, who is with the Kaysee excursionists who left here last week for the Grand Canyon, has written to one of his friends here that the Grand Canyon is the most magnificent place he has ever seen. The Kaysees are taking in all the sights and having a very delightful time. They are enjoying every minute and will be sorry when the time arrives for them to leave.

Mr. Chas. Padelford leaves this morning for a two months' vacation at the coast.

Mrs. I. E. Solomon arrived last evening from Solomonville. She will remain until Monday as the guests of her daughters, Mrs. Max Lantini and Mrs. J. Weinberger and her son Harry. Mrs. Weinberger will accompany her mother to Solomonville on Monday and a few days later they will leave for Colorado where they will spend the summer.

given thirty days in jail in which to refresh his memory.

The Lookout mine in the Big Bug district has been bonded by the present owners to Peter Laux of McCabe.

Engineers are now in the field between Yuma and Douglas making preliminary surveys by which it is thought the Phelps-Dodge line will be extended from Benson down the San Pedro and Gila rivers to Yuma.

The Douglas Daily Dispatch has passed from the ownership of the Dispatch Printing & Publishing company to a combination of former employees of the paper who will operate it in the future.
